Level 3

Have you ever wondered, why pink is not a part of the Rainbow? Well, this story may give you an idea. Just a few days after God had created color fairies , this incident took place. The Sun was the King, the Moon was the Princess, and they gave orders and regulations. They decided that the best seven colors who did good deeds, will give some of their colors to the rainbow. Till now, RED, ORANGE, YELLOW, GREEN and BLUE were included. Red had helped lots of children by giving them strength, Orange had helped the princess be more creative, Yellow had impressed the king by giving him more energy, Green helped mother nature and Blue had taken a hard task of covering the never-ending sky and water bodies and now Indigo was chosen as he was very rare! (unfair right?). Violet and pink always wanted to be a part, but only one of them could go now as the 7th. They were good friends, and always wanted to do good deeds to join the rainbow. One day, pink saw a girl crying on the road. Thinking this could be a good deed, she went and asked her what the matter was. The girl showed her broken rainbow toy. Pink made a new rainbow toy (with pink color after indigo) with her magic and gave it to the girl. The girl left happily. The Queen of fairies had a vision to see good deeds in her crystal ball. On her way home, pink saw a girl shivering in cold. but she didn't care to help as she only wanted to be part of a rainbow and she thought she had done it. But, the queen fairy was watching all this. Meanwhile, Violet was helping a family by decorating and painting their house as the paint was washed away because of a storm. She turned back to go home and saw the queen behind her.

" I am proud of you Violet" queen said, I knew only one of you would be chosen for the rainbow but I did not know who, so I sent some children to act like they were having a problem. She told her about pink's story. "Now I know you are the 7th color!" Violet was speechless for a second. "Me? a part of a rainbow?!?!!" but, I can't. Not without pink, She is my best friend". The Queen said - "Don't worry, lets ask the Sun if there can be a 8th color". Anyways, Pink always helps you! .But the sun refused. Pink heart sank hearing this. "Lets ask the moon if she can reward you". They went to the moon. The princess after hearing their story said , "I have always seen you helping your friends. but learn to help everyone with full heart. I will give you a blessing that small girls will always adore you". That's why, most girls adore pink and why it is not part of the rainbow.
