Level 2

Haven't we all dreamed of having a superhero who does our homework.

Long time back there was a scientist who made this dream come true .

He invented the HOMWORK HERO .

The scientist did not want children to never do their homework, so he made some rules . The homework hero would only come and save you from your teachers once a month . He wouldn't help lazy and lethargic children who didn't have a genuine reason.

One day a boy named Dan didn't do his homework since he was ill and had to go to the doctor . Little Dan didn't know about the homework hero. He was extremely worried but didn't find time to do his homework .

The next day he quietly tiptoed into his class and sat in the corner of the room making sure no one could see him and hoping that his teacher would forget about the homework she had assigned but she didn't , in a few minutes she asked everyone to submit their notebooks . Dan now was as scared as a puppy .

After a while when the teacher entered in to distribute the books , she was extremely impressed and happy that Dan had done his homework right . she was surprised since Dan never gave all correct answers . Dan too was surprised , he didn't do his homework .

Later that day , Dan told his mother what had happened. She didn't look surprised. she gave him a smile and giggled . Dan was confused. She then told him that she and every other mother in the world were the homework heroes who help their children. Dan gave her a huge hug and a broad smile .
