Level 1

There was once a fox, a raccoon, and a deer in the forest. They were best friends and lived at the top of the hill.

One day they heard music coming from the bottom of the hill. They did not know where it was coming from. They had never been down the hill before and were scared to go.

They decided to overcome their fear and go down the hill.

They made it down safely and were glad they did. The music was loud and happy.

They loved the music! They listened and danced all day.

Later they had to go back home up the hill. But now they were not afraid anymore of going down the hill.

The happy music was stuck in their heads all day.

They told all their friends about the music. They were excited and decided to all have a dance party.

Now no one on the hill was afraid to go down the hill.
